Andy DiMino

DEAN MARTIN

Andy DiMino's background may be more in music and singing than celebrity impersonations, but he is a natural at bringing ol' Dino back to life.

DiMino has been entertaining audiences for practically his entire life. Growing up in Southern California, his high school rock bands opened Hollywood club shows for groups like The Doors and Iron Butterfly. Playing the ski circuit in Colorado led to an album with RCA as a founding member and songwriter for the band First Fire, and later tour dates as keyboard player/singer with Mary MacGregor ("Torn Between Two Lovers").

DiMino later decided to leave the rock club circuit to stay close to home and raise his son. Focusing on songwriting, he worked as a solo guitarist/singer in restaurants and pubs. A first place prize on TV's Gong Show planted the seed for variety.

Moving to Las Vegas in 1990, DiMino quickly added acting and improv to his credits, appearing in TV commercials, a Tonight Show comedy sketch with Jay Leno and a bit part in a Kenny Rogers TV movie. DiMino also found work as Las Vegas legend Buddy Greco's production manager, working his big band dance/live radio shows at the Flamingo. It was here that DiMino got some of his earliest Vegas singing experiences, when Greco arranged a big band vocal chart for DiMino to sing on stage with his band.

As a child, DiMino watched the Dean Martin Variety Hour weekly on TV, and was drawn to Martin's relaxed style of singing. DiMino collected CDs, videos, books and memorabilia for over five years before he ever put on the tux and held his first fake cigarette. He saw other Rat Pack acts and decided to give it a try, taking his new "Dino" act on the road, performing as Martin in a long running lounge show at Harrahs, big band/concert shows in Arizona, Lake Tahoe and Boston, and local events.

When DiMino isn't on stage in a Las Vegas showroom, he can still be found performing at corporate events. DiMino's also back on the road, traveling to both coasts and in between, for various engagements performing as Dean, and also crooning and swinging the "standards" as himself. With his love for music and comedy of the Rat Pack generation, his close physical resemblance to Dean Martin and an Italian background (DiMino's father and all four grandparents were from Sicily), it looks like Andy DiMino has truly found his calling.

Sebastian Anzaldo

FRANK SINATRA

Originally hailing from Omaha, Sebastian Anzaldo grew up in a musical family (his father a sax player and later a talent agent, his mother a singer). He started playing drums and singing at age 11.

Sebastian's passion for jazz led him to New York, compliments of The National Endowment For The Arts. The next year, he headed to the opposite coast to make his fame and fortune in L.A., where he played professionally for 14 years. He then relocated to The Entertainment Capitol Of The World, Las Vegas, where he discovered his knack for doing "Frank".

With a dedication to perfecting the art of Sinatra, everything was in place and Sebastian began doing one corporate event after another. As word got out that there was a new 'Chairman' in town, he got the call to star in 'The Tribute To The Rat Pack' on the Las Vegas Strip. This in turn led to six years at the Riviera Hotel & Casino headlining with Sharon Owens as Barbra Streisand in the wonderful "Barbra & Frank, The Concert That Never Was...".

Sebastian debuted his Sinatra tribute on national TV in the summer of 2007 on the ABC hit show, The Next Best Thing, where he came in 2nd to none other than Elvis! In 2010, he performed at Foxwoods in Connecticut in "Legends In Concert" and is currently performing nightly with the "Barbra & Frank" show at the Westin, Las Vegas. Tours include United States, Canada, Spain, Italy, London, Hong Kong, Vietnam, Australia, Tasmania, New Zealand, Bahamas and many more!

Lambus Dean

SAMMY DAVIS JR.

A native of Chicago, ILL. (USA), Lambus was the 10th child from a family of 8 boys and 3 girls. He discovered his love for singing while in his teenage years, Do-Whopping with seasoned singers in his neighborhood. This led to invitations performing in various nightclubs and churches in the area. Once bitten by the entertainment bug, Lambus maintained his connections to music in and around his work and family responsibilities by joining theater groups and taking the occasional acting and singing parts as opportunities arose.

As a member of the ETA Creative Arts Theater, The Mary Matthews Theater Company and The Free Street Theater, all in Chicago, Lambus landed roles as diverse as Lazarus and other biblical characters to the starring role portraying Sam Cooke in A Change Gonna Come. He toured Europe in a musical documentary production of Project, Life and Times in the Cabrini Green Housing Project, which was showcased in the International Festival of Theaters.

Lambus relocated to Las Vegas in the late 1990's to try his luck at performing full time. His versatility enabled him to work as a solo artist as in groups where he quickly learned choreography and background harmonies as required in addition to carrying many lead vocal positions. A much sought after performer in Las Vegas, Lambus has answered the call to perform with a Temptation Tribute group, Touch of Silk, (a spin off of the Flamingos "I only have eyes for you") Spectrum, a group voted "Best Lounge act of Las Vegas 2005" and numerous "Rat Pack", tribute ensembles a perfect impersonation of Sammy Davis Jr.

Lambus has performed in casinos big and small on the Las Vegas strip, either as himself or his tribute to Sammy Davis Jr, (which he does with or without the rest of the Rat Pack). In fact he produced and starred in his own show entitled "A Musical Journey on Route 66", a wonderful production that audiences enjoyed at the Westward Ho Casino on the strip for 2 months in 2004.

Another jewel in his crown of achievements was his second place finish in the NBC television shows America's Most Talented Senior, an American Idol style show for people 50 and over.
